

5th April 2012

Run Number 203

Starting at The Belvedere, Sugnall Street, Liverpool

The Pack: Snoozanne, Carthief, FCUK, Compo, ET (Hare),

A reduced Pack (did that mean that they had experienced ET runs before?) so the victims had to spread themselves out a bit.

The Hare announced that it was friendly run with Checks, Regroups and a Check back or two.

The Hare carefully steered us up Falkner Street via and away from the On Inn. We followed the arrows around Falkner Square and into the salubrious Grove Street.

Princes Avenue followed and then South Street and the boarded up houses.

partially kept the Pack together and then a High Noon moment followed by FCUK making his usual mistake

Compo and Carthief tried balancing for some reason best known to themselves.

The Regroup was spotted and Then the Hare pointed out this house in

The missing window sill was a partial clue and the Hare eventually told us that Ringo had lived in the house at some point. Wiki says he was born there.

The deserted street gave us the idea of re-creating the Abbey Road scene but with very foreshortened zebra stripes and no Belisha beacon

Several streets later and this curiosity presented itself

A brief encounter with Princes Park and we found ourselves running up

Followed by

Those of you who were watching TV in the 80s in the UK may remember Bread <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bread> (TV series)

Elswick Street was the opening scene.

From the Wiki entry

Down to the bottom of Elswick Street and an impromptu Hash view

The steps followed.

And we were on Riverside Drive after a small challenge

With few Checks the Pack got strung out along Sefton Street and the FRBs missed the pub stop. The Hare realizing this persuaded Compo to forego the pub stop (how did he do that?) and we all ran in sans lubrication.

Snoozanne provided the food and there being no Hare there was a democratic vote to give everyone a Down Down.

The Pack retired to the Belvedere and the usual Easter chocolate rabbit raffle

Spanish cider was spotted (bad luck Tia Maria)
